

Personal experiences of health and illness

Would you like to take part in a study about experiences of genomics research (100,000 Genome Project) to develop a web resource for other patients, the public and healthcare professionals?

We would like to interview people who have been invited to take part in the 100,000 Genome Project. We are interested in hearing the experiences of people who took part in the project and those who decided not to take part. The interview will cover things like what you think about genomic research, how you made the decision to take part (or not), how you found information relating to the project, and anything else you would like to tell us.

We will publish the study findings on www.healthtalk.org, an award-winning website that provides access to the experiences of others who have faced the same concerns or health experiences. On the website you can read, hear or watch the accounts of people describing their experiences of many different health conditions.

Healthtalk is used to help support others going through similar experiences, and help train doctors, nurses, GPs and other health professionals to understand people's experiences of taking part in genomics research.

If you would like to take part, a researcher will come to interview you at your home or elsewhere if you prefer.

For more information on taking part, please contact:

E-mail: sara.ryan@phc.ox.ac.uk OR melissa.stepney@phc.ox.ac.uk

Twitter: @sarasiobhan OR @Dr_Stepper

Nuffield Department of Primary Care Health Sciences, Gibson Building, Radcliffe Observatory Quarter, Woodstock Road, Oxford OX2 6GG. Telephone: 01865 617867

More info: <http://www.phc.ox.ac.uk/research/health-experiences/current-modules/understanding-experiences-of-recruiting-for-and-participating-in-genomics-research>